Internship:
Verité interns do interesting and substantive work and are exposed to the vast world of corporate social responsibility (CSR) and human rights. They contribute to a variety of research projects addressing forced labor, human trafficking, and human rights abuses worldwide. Interns perform tasks such as conducting desk research, updating various databases that Verité maintains, completing various administrative tasks, drafting reports, and proofreading texts. Research interns read and analyze reports published by the U.S. Department of State, the U.S. Department of Labor, and the International Labour Organization (ILO) and become familiar with the work of these entities as well as the work of many different stakeholders. Interns will support our work with brands and our large-scale federally funded research projects across supply chains, sectors, and commodities. Interns may assist on a number of Verité projects and are not limited to only the projects detailed below.

Start date: Negotiable; end of summer/beginning of fall semester
End date: Negotiable; end of fall semester
Interns are expected to work 8 – 10 hours per week during the semester for 10 – 12 weeks (for a total of 80 – 120 hours). Exact start and end dates and hours are negotiable as long as those criteria are met.
Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, all internships are currently remote; should Verité staff return to the office, that option will be discussed for interns.

Verité offers interns a modest stipend in the amount of $250 for the duration of the session. If your school also provides either funding or academic credits for intern work, Verité is happy to assist with the required paperwork. We also plan different events for interns to interact with senior and other staff, and provide opportunities for mentoring and networking. We provide references upon successful completion of the internship.

Projects

- CUMULUS Forced Labor Screen: The CUMULUS project is a forced labor risk screening tool that enables companies to unravel complex labor supply chains and identify risks of human trafficking and forced labor within them. Verité continues to conduct original research to expand the scope of CUMULUS into additional industries and geographic areas. Interns will assist in gathering desk research in a number of languages using a wide variety of sources including academic, corporate, business, NGO, media, and government reports. Additional CUMULUS intern tasks may include:
  - Contributing to desk research on business sectors, labor migration, recruitment systems, and emerging legislation in the Gulf Cooperation Council, Southeast Asia, and European Union regions.
  - Organizing research findings using reporting templates and assisting analysts in data entry and data cleaning.
  - Providing translation assistance for documents, correspondences, and other resources. Those with language skills in Chinese, Thai, Malay, Khmer, Arabic, or Italian are encouraged to apply.

- Sub-Saharan Africa Microsite: This site consists of reports on 22 major African export commodities, and on all 49 sub-Saharan African countries that provide information about industry and national characteristics relevant to trafficking risk. The site also provides guidance on understanding trafficking risk and additional resources for companies and others interested in establishing compliance systems and other programming to prevent and address trafficking risk within global supply chains. This intern will be responsible for maintaining and updating the statistical and narrative content in the Africa microsite. Intern tasks may include:
  - Pulling in new numbers from publicly available published datasets and manipulating them to generate updated charts in Infogram (Proficiency with Excel, Infogram, and/or WordPress or other content management systems a plus).
  - Conducting desk research to update written content to match the new charts and to update narrative information about key commodities and countries (potentially in French and/or local African languages).

- Forced Labor Indicators Project: Verité is currently implementing a project funded by the U.S. Department of Labor that focuses on strengthening government, private sector, trade union, and civil society capacity to combat forced labor of adults and children in Ghana and Côte d’Ivoire. The Forced Labor Indicators Project (FLIP) was originally established to focus on the gold, cocoa, and palm oil sectors in Ghana and was expanded in 2020 to incorporate the cocoa and coffee sectors of Côte d’Ivoire as well. The project utilizes the International Labour Organization’s forced labor indicators approach to understand and combat forced labor and trafficking in these countries, to collaborate with stakeholders to integrate this approach into existing labor monitoring efforts, and to further capacitate key actors in recognizing, documenting, and addressing forced labor and labor trafficking. FLIP intern tasks may include:

- Supporting the development and implementation of online training sessions, curriculum, and materials.
- Conducting desk research on various topics related to forced labor and human trafficking.
- Organizing and synthesizing existing stakeholder mapping research.
- Inputting and cleaning of project data.
- Potential work in French.

STREAMS Project: The Supply Chains Tracing Engagement and Methodologies (STREAMS) Project is an exciting new initiative to enhance the downstream traceability of goods made by child and forced labor in global supply chains. Funded by the U.S. Department of Labor, the STREAMS Project will focus on developing an analytic framework to map and categorize supply chains and methods for tracing and validating supply chain connections, conducting pilots of supply chain tracing and validation methodologies in India’s garment sector, and creating accessible tools to enable diverse actors across sectors and supply chain tiers to adopt innovative tracing approaches. Fall 2022 interns will provide logistical, research, and strategic support to contribute to the development, finalization, and launch of the STREAMS Supply Chain Traceability Matrix website. STREAMS intern tasks may include:

The project will provide significant new information on forced labor within the garment and associated textile sectors in each country; will build the capacity of national research institutions, government, and civil society organizations to research, prevent, identify, and combat forced labor; will provide tools for the investigation of forced labor; and will catalyze a broad group of stakeholders to act on the research findings, making the link from data to policy. Intern activities for this work may include:
